Receipt of Domestic Interested Party Petition Concerning Eligibility of Mexican Inner Tubes for GSP Duty-Free Treatment

AGENCY: U.S. Customs Service, Department of the Treasury.

ACTION: Notice of receipt of domestic interested party petition; solicitation of comments.

SUMMARY: Customs has received a petition submitted on behalf of several domestic interested parties with respect to a Customs ruling that certain inner tubes imported from Mexico would be eligible for duty-free treatment under the Generalized System of Preferences (GSP). The petitioner contends that the inner tubes do not qualify for GSP duty-free treatment because the threshold Customs determination that the imported material from which the inner tubes are produced undergoes a substantial transformation into a separate and distinct article of commerce which, in turn, is used as a constituent material in producing the final article which is imported into the U.S., is incorrect. The petitioner believes that duty should be assessed on the inner tubes under the appropriate provision of the Tariff Schedules of the United States. This document invites comments with respect to the correctness of the determination of GSP-eligibility.

DATE: Comments must be received on or before July 14, 1986.

ADDRESS: Comments (preferably in triplicate) may be addressed to and inspected at the Regulations Control Branch, U.S. Customs Service, 1301 Constitution Avenue, NW., Room 2426, Washington, D.C. 20229 (202-566-8237).

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: Myles B. Harmon, Classification and Value Division, U.S. Customs Service, 1301 Constitution Avenue, NW., Washington, D.C. 20229 (202-566-2938).

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

BACKGROUND

Pursuant to §516, Tariff Act of 1930, as amended (19 U.S.C. 1516), a domestic interested party petition has been filed with respect to a decision in which Customs ruled that certain inner tubes imported from Mexico would be eligible for duty-free treatment under the Generalized System of Preferences (GSP).

Under the GSP program established pursuant to title V of the Trade Act of 1974 (19 U.S.C. 2461 et seq.), certain articles imported directly from a beneficiary developing country (BDC) may be eligible for duty-free treatment if considered the growth, product, manufacture or assembly of the BDC, and if the sum of the cost or value of materials of the BDC, plus the direct costs of processing performed in the BDC, is not less than 35 percent of the appraised value of the article at the time of its entry into the U.S. The GSP program is implemented by §§10.171-10.178, Customs Regulations (19 CFR 10.171-10.178). Pursuant to §10.177(a)(2), Customs Regulations (19 CFR 10.177(a)(2)), materials of which a GSP-eligible article is comprised, if not wholly the growth, product, or manufacture of a BDC, must be substantially transformed in the BDC into a new and different article of commerce in order for those materials to be considered to be produced in the BDC so that their cost or value may be counted toward the 35 percent value-content requirement. In other words, for the cost of materials from a non-BDC to be counted toward the 35 percent value-content requirement, the materials first must be substantially transformed into a new and different intermediate article of commerce and then must be used in the production of a new and different final article of commerce which is imported into the U.S.

On August 8, 1984, Customs issued ruling 071703 (C.S.D. 85-12, 19 Cust. B. and Dec. No. 7 at 22, February 13, 1985), which stated that when finished vulcanized rubber tubes were produced in Mexico, a BDC, from material known as masterbatch which was imported from a non-BDC, there was a substantial transformation of the masterbatch into a new and different intermediate article of commerce, unvulcanized tubes. Therefore, the cost or value of the masterbatch could be counted toward the GSP 35 percent value-added requirement when the final product, finished vulcanized rubber tubes, were imported into the U.S. The conclusion that the unvulcanized tubes were a separate and distinct article of commerce from the masterbatch and from the finished vulcanized rubber tubes was based upon review of the Explanatory Notes to the international Customs Cooperation Council Nomenclature (CCCN) and the future international Harmonized System (HS) of tariff classification. Because Customs determined that the unvulcanized tubes were separate and distinct articles of commerce, the value of the masterbatch was permitted to be counted toward the 35 percent value-added requirement. Accordingly, the inner tubes imported from Mexico would be eligible for duty-free treatment under the GSP.

On December 24, 1985, a petition was submitted on behalf of several domestic interested parties who are manufacturers and producers in the U.S. of a class or kind of merchandise similar to the merchandise which is imported from Mexico. The petitioner claims that the processing in Mexico of masterbatch material imported from a non-BDC into finished inner tubes does not involve the production of a new and different intermediate article of commerce before the final article is produced. Uncured or unvulcanized tubing is not an intermediate constituent material, as Customs ruled, because it has no practical commercial viability. Trade in unvulcanized tubing suitable for making inner tubes is not possible as the short shelf-life of the tubing does not permit maintenance of commercial inventories.

The petitioner also contends that the international classification provisions relied upon in Customs decision do not support the conclusion reached inasmuch as the Explanatory Note to the CCNN referenced in the decision is concerned with a different product than tubing used in the manufacture of inner tubes.

For these reasons, the petitioner believes that the requirement in § 10.177(a)(2), Customs Regulations, is not satisfied and the cost or value of the masterbatch, imported to Mexico from a non-BDC, may not be counted toward the GSP value-content requirement.
